

Title: From topology to faces

Don Saari (UCI)

Abstract: By necessity, many if not most experiments tend to be local in nature, which is true with Chimeric faces. A natural question is to find a way to piece these local results into a global story. As shown in this talk, this can be done by use of elementary topology. In doing so, some surprising consequences follows. (The described work is joint with Louis Narens.)